Marketing4Digital (M4D) Book Series

To be a successful company, print providers must be a cut above the rest. They must be armed with the kind of knowledge that helps them build more business from stronger, more loyal customers. They must understand their clients' businesses as well as they understand their own. They must be solutions oriented, not sales oriented—this is not an easy task. To help print providers, the Digital Printing Council (DPC) has undertaken a comprehensive, unique and extensive research project, Marketing4Digital (M4D), that will give digital and conventional printers the information and tools they need to develop new business within 24 vertical segments. Xerox is proud to partner with the DPC and make available the M4D series that will arm print providers and their sales staff with the specific detail they require to:

- Understand the specific needs of current and potential customers in different vertical segments.
- Help sales staff “speak the specific language” of vertical-segment customers by giving them a deep understanding of the respective environments and unique requirements.
- Identify digital printing and variable-data printing opportunities within each of the segments.

Xerox 1:1 Lab

Delivering the proof of concept to marketers

1:1 Lab is one of our most effective programs for demonstrating the power of personalized color marketing to our customers. The 1:1 Lab uses direct mail marketing campaigns to test the difference of customized print communication over standardized direct mail messages. And it was created to help Xerox Graphic Communications providers deliver relevant direct mail for their clients.

Case Studies

See the value the 1:1 Lab demonstrates to a variety of our customers. Read our case studies for highlights of the most transformative results.

For example:

Ford Motor Company—The Ford Extended Service Plan (ESP) is the only extended service plan backed by Ford. Ford sells nearly a million ESP contracts each year. In the 1:1 Lab, Ford tested two creative formats – self-mailer versus letter – and the use of individual relevant information for Ford F150 truck owners. The results included a more than 35% increase in sales and a reduction in production costs by 3.2%.

Maine Office of Tourism—As the marketing organization for the largest industry in the state of Maine, the Maine Office of Tourism serves a wide range of travel-related businesses and a broad spectrum of potential visitors with diverse interests. Their challenge: reaching every hiker or beachcomber or antique-seeker with the information that is most relevant to their interests and most likely to persuade them to choose Maine. The data-driven, personalized fulfillment mailing generated a 24.1% improvement in response rates over the control fulfillment and a 23.4% increase in revenue from the visitors to the state.
